Fall Gardening Demonstrations at the Cross Estate

Spend Saturday morning at the Cross Estate Gardens on October 18 from 10 a.m. to noon enjoying the beauty of a historic fall garden. Learn what to plant in the fall and how to get a garden ready for winter with our following demonstrations:

- Garden tool cleaning and sharpening ($3 per tool, one per visitor, if you'd like our volunteers to sharpen your gardening tool for you); demonstration free.
- Bulb planting — demonstration plus a bag of five assorted spring flowering bulbs to take home with you with your new membership in NJHGF.
- Children's Planting Lesson shows children the correct way to plant an herb or small flowering plant in a pot to take home.
- Cutting down and dividing perennials.
- Garden tours will be available of the historic Walled Garden, the Native Garden, Grace's Garden and the Tower Walk.

Get your hands dirty or just take photos! Fun learning experience for the entire family. Demonstrations and tours free. Demonstrations will be held under the pergola next to the Walled Garden. In the event of rain, demonstrations will be held inside the Cross Mansion. Registration not necessary.

An Honor for the Cross Estate Gardens

The Walled Garden at the Cross Estate Gardens made the cover of a just-published hardcover book by Nancy Berner, Susan Lowry and Gemma Ingalls. We are so proud that our garden was selected to represent public and private gardens of New Jersey.

What's Happening in the Gardens?

Jean Pope, second from left, and friends from Pennsylvania visit our Plant Sale on May 3, 2014. Jean started the volunteer group at the Cross Estate Gardens in 1977 and remained hard at work here until the early 1990s when Jean and her husband Dan retired to rural Pennsylvania. Our 2014 Plant Sale did very well, netting over $4,100.

Volunteers Fred Aufschlager, Ron Herold and Ron Bailey cut back the extremely lush growth in the Native Garden, thereby making the paths more passable. Lots of rain in June and July, plus moderate summer temperatures, have resulted in a good growing season this summer. Just what we needed after a spring that was slow to start.

Eleven Student Conservation Association (SCA) volunteers, from a variety of states across the country, are pictured with our horticulturist board member Carolyn Lydon. They helped us once again with a variety of gardening jobs for three weeks in July. A big 'Thank You' to a very willing and able group of students!

The Tower Walk

The historic Water Tower, constructed in 1905, has been hidden from view for the past century by the various invasive trees that grew up around the tower. While the Water Tower has continually served the very important function of supplying water to the Cross Estate Mansion and the surrounding gardens, its uniqueness and magnificence were lost to visitors. In the early 2000s we opened up the view slightly by cutting down some of the invasive trees and shrubbery, creating a visual path to the Water Tower. In 2014 we obtained a generous grant from the New Jersey Committee of the Garden Club of America, through the Garden Club of Madison, and another generous grant from the Garden Club of Somerset Hills, plus a wonderful donation from Jean and Dan Pope. This funding enabled us to further cut down the invasive trees and shrubs blocking the view of the Water Tower and lay down a 95-foot bluestone path leading the eye towards the tower. We also planted 21 native trees and shrubs — Flowering Dogwood, Shadblow Serviceberry, red and white Eastern Redbuds and Bottlebrush Buckeye — in the cleaned out area around the new Tower Walk.

Success! The bluestone Tower Walk is finished, the 21 native trees and shrubs are planted and the surrounding area is mulched with wood chips to help suppress further invasive growth. Now visitors can enjoy the magnificent view of the Water Tower.
